Police Scotland
Body Worn Video Cameras - Consultation Survey
Response from North Ayrshire Council

Background and Consultation Request

Police Scotland are undertaking a survey and looking for responses from the public on the proposal that officers use body worn video cameras.

Response from North Ayrshire Council

This response provides some general or high-level feedback on the consultation request and proposal to adopt the practice of wearing body worn video cameras. The Council recognises that all public services need to change and adapt to ensure that they are fit to serve and meet the needs of local communities and adopt new ways of working and technologies to improve and deliver services.

The Council offers the following comments for consideration:

- Recording of incidents would assist the police in investigation of complaints and provide evidence of events. The existence of video evidence may assist with the conduct of criminal trials and add value to proceedings.
- Recording may provide assurance to the public by way of transparently recording incidents which in turn would remove subjective accounts of events. It would improve police accountability to the public.
- The use of cameras may provide protection to police officers from false accusations and lead to fewer complaints against officers.
- A code of practice should be established to regulate operational practice and the subsequent use and storage of the data recorded. Data would require to be processed in accordance with the relevant legislation.
- Training of officers and civilian staff on operational requirements should be undertaken.

Conclusion

The Council considers that subject to the necessary training of officers, an operating code of practice and adherence to legislation in respect of data protection, the proposal would represent a valuable step forward in modern day policing.
